Districts throughout the State Achieve Success on June 8, 2010 CFW Provides the Winning Formula Even In Tough Economic Times

EMERYVILLE, CA – On June 8, 2010, school districts from the North Coast to the Eastern Sierras to Southern California earned the needed voter support to pass bond measures and improve their schools. CFW welcomes Anderson Valley Unified School District (Mendocino County), Big Pine Unified School District (Inyo County), Blue Lake Union School District (Humboldt County), Hope School District (Santa Barbara County), Mark West School District (Sonoma County), and Willits Unified School District (Mendocino County) to our family of successful clients and congratulates them for their victories.

While the projects these bond programs will fund are diverse, they share certain similarities. All measures will fund specific facilities improvements, including replacing relocatable buildings with permanent classrooms, completing general renovations and repairs, and constructing new facilities, such as multi-purpose rooms and vocational education classrooms. In addition, all of the bonds will also fund improvements – including deferred maintenance contributions, computers and technology, and solar installation – that will mitigate the impact of State budget cuts to the general fund. This is the third major election cycle that we have worked with our clients to create and pass Prop. 39 bond programs that not only meet facilities needs, but also provide annual operating savings to our clients.

Because of the general economic condition of the nation, the elections promised to be a challenge. However, all of the bond programs were creatively designed to make financial sense for each District as well as earn the required voter support.

“I would first like to congratulate all of our successful clients throughout the State – their efforts made all of the difference,” said Ernesto Flores, President. “Each client maintained a focused plan to finance the proposed improvements and exhibited incredible leadership throughout the process. I look forward to helping each of our clients complete their school facility programs.”
